

Man gets three years' probation after prison sentence is stayed

Another charge of disorderly conduct/domestic abuse as a repeater and two charges of misdemeanor bail jumping were dismissed in the plea agreement.

According to the complaint, Sunn was at a party Aug. 30, 2012, when he kicked and punched a 26-year-old woman who had a child in her arms. The woman received a contusion on the right side of her forehead, but the child was not hurt. He was on probation with a no-drink stipulation at the time and had a blood alcohol concentration of 0.09% when tested at Ministry Eagle River Memorial Hospital.

Judge Nielsen said conditions of Sunn's probation include: not to possess or consume intoxicants; no taverns; undergo assessment for counseling and any treatment as recommended; no prescription medications un-less prescribed; take a parenting class; complete domestic abuse and men's batterers group counseling; counseling deemed appropriate by the agent; restitution to be determined in 30 days; apology letter to victim when done with counseling; and domestic abuse surcharge of $100.
